DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means", "said," and "comprising" should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

2. The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because of the use of legal phraseology [note the word "comprising" in line 3. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter, which the applicant regards as his invention.

Art Unit: 3725

4. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical and idiomatic errors. For example only, the phrase "the block is formed from a solid table salt body, which either has its natural shape or has been brought into a different desired shape" in line 9-10 of claim 1, render the claims indefinite because all of the particular features encompassed thereby cannot be determined. Additionally, it is not clear whether the word in the parentheses is intended to further limit the claim.

With respect to claim 1: the addition of the phrase "an actor is introducible and inserted through the opening of the block" is confusing since it is not clear whether the applicant's intention is to positively claim the actor or not. Also, the use of "it" in claim is confusing since it is not clear what the "it" is referring to.

With respect to claim 1: a broad range or limitation together with a narrow range or limitation that falls within the broad range or limitation (in the same claim) is considered indefinite, since the resulting claim does not clearly set forth the metes and bounds of the patent protection desired. Note the explanation given by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences in Ex parte Wu, 10 USPQ2d 2031, 2033 (Bd. Pat. App. & Inter. 1989), as to where broad language is followed by "such as" and then narrow language. The Board stated that this can render a claim indefinite by raising a question or doubt as to whether the feature introduced by such language is (a) merely exemplary of the remainder of the claim, and therefore not required, or (b) a required feature of the claims. Note also, for example, the decisions of Ex parte Steigewald, 131 USPQ 74 (Bd. App. 1961); Ex parte Hall, 83 USPQ 38 (Bd. App. 1948); and Ex parte Hasche, 86 USPQ 481 (Bd. App. 1949). In the present instance, claim 1 recites the broad recitation block, and the claim also recites a desired shape of an egg, which is the narrower statement of the range/limitation.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mock [2,190,105].

Mock discloses in Figs 1-5, a device for the metered delivery of small of amount of a substance [coconut], comprising a case/block substance [coconut] that can be at least partially gripped by the hand of a person, an actor [shank 4 and blades 7] is introducible and inserted through the opening of the block. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the actor with any substance such as block of a salt.

7. Claims 2-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mock in view of Bigelow [5,364,037].

Mock discloses most of the elements of these claims but for a source of light.

Bigelow is cited to show desirability, in the relevant art, to provide a hand held grinding device with a source of light 42. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the device of Mock with the source of light as taught by Bigelow in order to insure the precise application of the grated coconut by directing the emerging light toward the desired location. Additionally, It would have been obvious to substitute an LED for the light source in the modified system of Mock. One would have been motivated since LEDs are recognized in the illumination art to have many desirable advantages, including reduced size, high efficiency, low power consumption, long life, resistance to vibrations, and low heat production, over other light sources.
